

Marriage Contract

1. Subject of the Agreement

This Marriage Contract (shall be referred as "Contract" hereinafter) has been signed by and between _____ ("Wife" hereinafter) and _____ ("Husband" hereinafter) to arrange the financial and other consequences in case of divorce in the future and the determine the property status of the goods existing before the marriage union and the property remaining during the union of marriage.

On the date of this Contract, the parties are not married yet, they conclude this contract as a prenuptial agreement. The planned marriage date of the parties is _____.

2. Pre-Marital Assets of the Parties

Each party accepts and declares that any property and assets owned by them before the date of marriage, including, but not limited to, real property, investments, savings accounts, and personal belongings, are their separate property and shall remain their separate property throughout the marriage.

In the event of a divorce or separation, each party shall retain their separate property and such assets shall not be subject to the separation of the marital assets. However, if any pre-marital assets are commingled with marital assets or are used for the benefit of the marriage, then such assets may be subject to division as marital property in accordance with the laws of the applicable jurisdiction.

Each party shall be entitled to manage and control their separate property and neither party shall have any claim or interest in the other party's separate property.

This provision is intended to govern the treatment of pre-marital assets and shall not be construed as a waiver of any other rights or remedies available to either party under the applicable laws.

3. Property to Be Acquired During Marriage

With the exception of inherited property and gifts, all property and assets acquired by either party during the duration of the marriage shall be considered marital property and subject to equal division in the

4. Spousal Support

In the event of divorce, parties agree and declare that neither party demands alimony payment or spousal support from the other party. In the event that either party experiences a significant change in circumstances, such as a job loss or a serious health issue, the spousal support arrangement may be renegotiated.

If the parties have a child and divorce before the child reaches majority, alimony is paid to the party holding the custody of the child in accordance with the conditions of the day. After the child comes of age, the relevant payment will be done to the child. In cases where the parties have more than one child, this provision applies to each child separately.

The parties agree to make good faith efforts to resolve any disputes that arise regarding spousal support through negotiation or mediation before seeking court intervention.

5. Personal Finances

The parties acknowledge that each party has individual bank accounts, financial responsibilities and obligations, and that they will maintain separate finances throughout the marriage. Each party shall be solely responsible for their own debts and financial obligations incurred prior to and during the marriage.

The parties agree to maintain separate bank accounts and credit cards throughout the marriage. The parties will contribute equally to shared living expenses. The parties acknowledge that they will not use joint funds for personal expenses or purchases without the other party's consent.

During marriage the parties agree that if one party becomes unable to fend for oneself financially due to a disability or illness, the other party shall provide financial support on a temporary basis.

6. Severability

If any provision of this Marriage Contract is held to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, or deemed invalid because they are unfair or unreasonable, the remaining provisions shall nevertheless continue in full force and effect. The parties agree to negotiate in good faith to replace any such invalid, void, or unenforceable provision with a valid provision that most closely reflects the intent of the parties as expressed in the original provision.

7. Dispute Resolution

In the event of any dispute arising between the parties in relation to this Contract, the parties shall attempt to resolve such dispute in good faith through amicable negotiations.

Any dispute that cannot be resolved by the parties amicably shall be governed and construed in accordance with the applicable laws of State of the _____.
